<Reasons for revisions>

The business environment during the first six months of the fiscal year ending March 31, 2014 including the economy in the U.S. and Japan began to improve, and also in the electronics industries automobile, smart phones and tablet PC markets made a steady performance. Furthermore, depreciation of the yen was more than expected at the beginning of the year and sales have exceeded the original forecast. Regarding profits, operating income is not expected to show a significant change due to decrease of inventory, although the steady performance of sales and effect of measurements for earning recovery such as cost reduction contributed. On the other hand, ordinary income and net income are expected to exceed the forecasts as above due to foreign currency exchange gain according to depreciation of the yen more than expected, despite of possibility of correction of overseas subsidiaries' taxes. Forecast data for the entire year has not been finalized. The company will make it available on the day of announcement of the second quarter results that is scheduled on November 5, 2013.
